1. SEMA Rack Safety Awareness Training Report November 2025 – Mlamuli Moyo

I write this report with a modest sense of delight and satisfaction that I just attended a very empowering SEMA course on Racking Safety Awareness, presented jointly by Mr Matthew Grierson and Mr Alan Worrell (both from SEMA), at Acrow, on the 26th of November 2025.

I also thank Acrow management for affording me this opportunity, which marks a milestone in my quest to deepen my knowledge in the racking and shelving industry. As an experienced racking and shelving installer with over 20 years in the industry, I have always been willing to obtain formal training that is aligned with an international standard in the racking and shelving installation trade.

The SEMA training came at a perfect time, as we are more often faced with the installation of higher structures where tolerances are stringent. It is amazing how the UK Health and Safety at Work Act (HASAWA) almost aligns with the OHSA Act (Occupational Health & Safety Act 85 of 1993), the South African Health and Safety Act. The Sema Racking and Shelving Safety Awareness course objectively centres on the legal requirements for designing the racking systems and the use responsibilities. It further elaborates on correct use of the racking, user responsibilities and pallet placement.

Thus, the course is not only useful to the designer, manufacturer, and installer of racking, but also to the end user. The course provides an in-depth description of the inspection, expounding on the three-tier (onion-skin) process, risk assessment, and classification.

The presentation, the first that was ever conducted outside Europe, was first-class, delivered by very experienced SEMA officials from the UK who demonstrated top-notch subject matter knowledge and all-around practical experience.

For those involved in racking and shelving design and installation, warehouse operations, or related trades, it is advantageous to consider undertaking a SEMA course as soon as possible, as it serves as an eye-opener in the safe installation and use of the racking and shelving system.

2. SEMA Testimonial – Thardt van der Walt

Attending the SEMA Rack Safety Awareness Training was a valuable and eye-opening experience. The presenters delivered world-class guidance on racking safety, legal requirements, inspections, and user responsibilities. Even with my years of experience in racking installation, the course offered new insights that will improve the quality and safety of my work. I highly recommend this training to anyone involved in racking, warehousing, or installation.
